IS KILLED WHEN HORSE RUNS AWAY

Mrs. Julia Hibben Flagg, A Native of Rushville, Meets With Accident.

BORN AND REARED IN CITY

She Does Not Regain Consciousness
After Being Thrown From Buggy—Many Relatives Here.

Rushville relatives and friends have received the news of the accidental death of Mrs. Julia Hibben Flagg, wife of Dr. C. E. B. Flagg at Vancouver, Washington. She was killed in a runaway and never regained consciousness after the accident. Mrs. Flagg is a native of Rushville and is extensively related here.

In the runaway Mrs. Flagg was thrown to the street and her head struck on the pavement. She was picked up unconscious and at no time was any hope entertained for her recovery. Her husband, Dr. Flagg, was severely injured in the runaway but it is thought that he will recover. Dr. Flagg, according to the word received here, was conscious and was able to attend to his wife until an ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Flagg was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hibben and was born and reared in this city. They lived here a number of years and later moved to Indianapolis. While in Indianapolis, Mrs. Flagg was educated in the medical profession and was later a practicing physician. Her father, E. C. Hibben and his father were at one time editors of a local weekly newspaper. Mrs. Gertrude Robinson Hibben, mother of the victim of the runaway, was a sister of Mrs. A. G. Mauzy and is related to other families here.

Dr. and Mrs. Flagg, to whom two children were born and who survive Mrs. Flagg, were married in Indianapolis. Dr. Flagg became an army surgeon and has traveled in all parts of the world. He has been stationed in the Philippines and a number of other places where the United States army has been called. He only recently retired from the army service and located in Vancouver.

Twenty-seven of the ninety-two counties of the State have no such property.

The only interurban line running into Fayette, Rush, Decatur and Shelby counties are the two divisions of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company. The company is assessed on $80,865 in Decatur county; $52,468 in Fayette county; $145,108 in Shelby county and $221,774 in Rush county. In Marion county it is assessed on $58,176.

Henley of Carthage, was fined twenty-five dollars and costs in the Indianapolis police court yesterday afternoon, when he pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery. A stranger went on Mr. Henley's bond.

PLANS FOR UNION CHILDREN'S DAY

Monster Parade of All the Sabbath
Schools Will be Held Next Sunday Morning.

REV. ORR MEETS TEACHERS

The Rev. W. W. Orr met the Sunday school teachers and superintendents of all the churches last night after the services at the tabernacle and proposed a plan to hold a union Children's Day or special services for the children one week from Sunday. The plan is for all the children to first go to their respective churches and then march to the tabernacle. From the tabernacle all the children from all the churches will form one long line of march and go to a church, where Evangelist Orr will talk to them. It has not been decided definitely but the service will probably be held in the Main Street Christian church. If the plan is carried through there will be no sermons in the morning of this Sunday, but all will give the usual hour up to the children.

INJURY RESULTS IN LOSS OF EYE

Isaac Paxton of Mays Meets With Painful Accident While at Work in Saw Mill.

WAS TAKEN TO INDIANAPOLIS

Isaac N. Paxton, employed in the saw mill at Mays, suffered the loss of the sight of his right eye while at work in the mill yesterday. The injury resulted from a sliver thrown by the saw, which penetrated the eye. Dr. W. A. Lord was called and on his recommendation Mr. Paxton was taken at once to Indianapolis, where he is under treatment of Dr. Morrison at the Deaconess hospital. He was accompanied by his brother-in-law, Jefferson Kirkpatrick.

FIVE MORE ARE VICTIMS

Ham.

Five more victims of ptomaine poisoning as the result of eating cold boiled ham have been reported. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Beaver and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Beaver of New Salem have been suffering great pain and have been very ill with the same symptoms as those who have been afflicted in this city. Wilbur Stevens of this city has been suffering with the same malady.

FIND MARRIED LIFE UNBEARABLE

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Stanley Reach That Conclusion After Twenty-Five Years.

LEFT HERE FEW YEARS AGO

Sensational Evidence Was Expected in Case in Shelby Circuit Court Today.

After twenty-five years of married life, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Stanley of Shelbyville, until a few years ago residents of this county, have decided that married life is intolerable. Cordelia Stanley brought suit against her husband in the Shelby circuit court and the case was set for hearing there today. It was expected that the entire day would be taken up by the introduction of testimony as a number of witnesses have been summoned.

A number of Rush county people were among the number who were expected to testify in the case. Many people of Shelbyville have been summoned as were a number from even a greater distance. Mr. Stanley employed counsel and expected to resist the granting of the decree. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley until a few years ago lived near Moscow and they now have many friends in that vicinity. They are also known in this city.

Mrs. Stanley alleges in her complaint cruel and inhuman treatment and failure to provide. Shelbyville papers say that something very sensational was expected as a number of Shelbyville people were involved in the family troubles.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley separated about a year ago and have not lived together since that time. They have several married children living in Shelbyville.

TRIAL RUN.

Shelbyville Democrat: Horatio Sexton, Jr., visited relatives at Rushville today. He made the trip on his pony as a sort of a trial to determine the pony's powers of endurance, as he intends to ride him to Dayton, O., next week. He will probably start on the one hundred mile trip next Tuesday morning.

Second street from Main to the first alley east was opened today.

MANY HEART RENDING SCENES ARE ENACTED IN COURT HOUSE CORRIDORS

No doubt the world will never know the heart rending scenes that have been enacted in the corridors of the Rush county court house. The world will never know what lives have been blighted and what hearts have been broken. And again the world will never believe that many a happy home is made after courtship conducted in the very halls of justice and within a few feet of where the little slips of paper which give young people the right to become man and wife are written.

Many are the "cases" that have developed under the protecting roof of the county's pride. Young country people gather there while "in town" on Saturday and whisper sweet nothing to one another. He proposes to build her a little nest down on his "pop's" farm and they decided to start out to annex two or three hundred acres of Rush county's good soil and buy an automobile.

Not only do the youngsters, who

RUSH COUNTY IS IN NEW DISTRICT

Insane Patients Will be Taken to Madison Where Southeastern
District Hospital is Located.

FAYETTE AND RUSH CHANGED

Is Made Due to Crowded Condition
at Richmond—Room For 500
More There.

It is very likely that not many weeks will pass before Rush county will have no trouble in gaining admission to the Indiana hospitals for its insane patients. Governor Thomas R. Marshall has redistricted the State so that Rush and Fayette county are now in the southern district instead of the eastern district. Hereafter Rush county insane patients will be sent to Madison instead of Richmond.

The change was made due to the fact that the Richmond asylum is crowded while there is plenty of room at the Madison hospital. At present there is room for only eight hundred patients at Richmond but there are eight hundred and twenty being cared for there. At Madison there is room for the same number, but there are only three hundred insane persons confined there.

There is only one fault that has been found by local officials with the change. The distance to Madison is twice as great as it is to Richmond, but the city is in easy access as it can be reached on the division of the J. M. & I. which runs through this city.

There are many features that are pleasing to the local officials. Heretofore, on account of the crowded condition at Richmond, it has always been necessary to hold patients here for some time before room could be made for them at the hospital. At present there are three patients who have been declared insane, but they have not yet been admitted due to the crowded condition. There are about fifty patients from Rush county which are confined at Richmond.

J. L. Cowing of this city is a member of the board of the asylum at Richmond. He says that a meeting will be held next Tuesday when arrangements will be made to transfer the Fayette and Rush county inmates from Richmond to Madison.

The district change will have no effect on his position as only two members of the present board live in the eastern district.

SOME THIRST AND NO FUNDS

Miscreants Raid Local Storage Plant of Brewing Company.

Some miscreants having an awful thirst and a lack of funds broke into the Indianapolis Brewing Company's cold storage plant near the C. H. & D. station last night and stole a large quantity of beer. What they could not drink they carried away. The local agent is not certain yet as to what the loss will be. He will check up Monday. The theft has been reported to the police.

EXCITEMENT OVER SUPPOSED MAD DOG

Canine Had Appearance of Suffering
From Hydrophobia, but Police
Think it Was Poisoned.

KILLED BY WALTER ADAMS

A mad dog scare created no little excitement this morning among the residents of East Sixth street. A dog supposed to be mad was wandering from house to house and from the froth coming from his mouth, sure had the appearance of a dog suffering from hydrophobia. After running loose for an hour, the dog was killed by Walter Adams. Mrs. Douglas Morris saw a stray dog in her yard and gave him a drink of water. No sooner had the water touched the dog's lips when he began frothing and running wild. The police were notified, but could not find any trace of the animal. Because of the fact that the canine wanted water it is thought it was not mad but had been poisoned and the police say this explains the frothing at the mouth.

FRANCIS JOYCE ARRESTED TODAY

Was Found by Policeman McAllister
Lying on Sidewalk in North
Morgan Street.

WANTED TO FIGHT OFFICER

Francis Joyce was found about noon today lying in front of the Newman restaurant in Morgan street by Policeman McAllister in a very drunken condition. Joyce did not like the idea of going to jail and tried to fight the officer, who was compelled to hit him once. Joyce said he could not be arrested and McAllister had a little difficulty in making him clearly understand just how he should behave. Before the police arrived some men tried to help Joyce to his feet but he fought and prevented them from doing so. At the jail he said he would have McAllister prosecuted for searching his clothes. He will probably be tried Monday. It is understood that this will be his third appearance before Mayor Black.

TRANSFERS SHORT.

Real estate transfers for the week were much smaller than common. The sales of real estate in which the price paid was reported did not amount to ten thousand dollars. Two small land deals were consummated and the remainder of the transfers were for lots.

ligious Freedom and Liberty.

ANOTHER GREAT SERMON

Most Important Meeting of Series
Will be Held Tonight—Asks Business Houses to Close.

"If the audience goes to the devil, it is not the fault of the committee which built this building," declared the Rev. W. W. Orr last night. The backs which were placed on the "circus" seats pleased the Rev. Mr. Orr and he took occasion to congratulate the building committee. "This is the most complete and comfortable building I have preached in, in my ten years' experience," said he.

Evangelist Orr announced that tonight he would preach the most important sermon of the two weeks' revival and as a result it is expected that the tabernacle will be taxed to its capacity. He made a plea to every Christian business man to close his place of business and come out and hear him. The Rev. Mr. Orr asked that they close only for an hour, and if there are any of the clerks who do not care to attend, let them take care of the store. There was no sermon in the afternoon as the Evangelist always takes Saturday afternoon as a time to rest.

The sermon Sunday afternoon to the men and boys of the city will be on "The Devil Detective." The Rev. Mr. Orr stated that he desired every man and boy in the city to be present and he promised not to abuse them, but would offer some sound advice. The city band will give a sacred concert on the street and at the tabernacle before the meeting starts. The evangelist is planning a similar meeting for the women of the city and asked them not to feel slighted as their time was coming.

Many coats were absent last night as a result of an invitation given the night previous, that coats were not necessary. Each evening a section of seats are reserved for the Salvation Army, which is always late in arriving, due to their street service. Last evening the Rev. Mr. Orr took occasion to praise the press of the city as did the Rev. Cyrus Yocum, for the able manner in which the papers were handling the revival.

The crowd at the meeting last night was as large if not larger than the one on the preceding nights. The choir was enlarged and strengthened by the addition of several voices and the music under the able direction of Prof. Ross is proving a feature. Prof. Ross sang a beautiful solo which was greatly appreciated by the audience and he was forced to respond to several encores. Before the arrival of the evangelist, the Rev. Cyrus Yocum led the audience in Scripture reading and many responded.

The topic of last night's sermon was, "The Work of the Holy Ghost Within a Man," and the Rev. Orr took his text from the fourteenth chapter of John, the sixteenth and seventeenth verses, which is as follows: "And I will pray to the Father and He shall give you another comforter that He may abide with you forever." In the discourse that followed many works of the Spirit were shown. The Rev. Mr. Orr said that the work of the Divine Spirit applies to preachers as well as to anyone else and as they use this work, they will be punished. "The ministers should use Christ to the world and should use the pulpit for Christ and Christ only," said he. "I tell you it takes grit in a preacher to

PARESIS TAKES CARRIE NATION

Bold Temperance Worker Dead In Sanitarium.

SUFFERED UTTER BREAKDOWN

For Past Five Months Woman Who Had Smashed Saloons in Nearly Every State in the Union and Had Carried Her Hatchet Crusade to England, Gave Way Under Violent Strain and Was a Helpless Imbecile.

Leavenworth, Kan., June 10.—At 7 o'clock last night Carrie Nation, who gained celebrity by her use of a hatchet in the cause of prohibition, died here in the Evergreen sanitarium, to which she was admitted in January suffering from nervous breakdown. Mrs. Nation in the sanitarium was incapable of managing her business affairs. All trace of the bold prohibition worker had disappeared when her iron constitution gave way, and she spent the last five months of her life in seclusion.

Carrie Nation, who first regarded herself as a woman with a mission to destroy the rum and cigarette traffic, and later made use of her mission for vaudeville, wielded the hatchet against saloons actively in nearly every city of importance in the country and several in England for nine years; and then retired with enough money to buy a farm in Arkansas. She was arrested and held in jail for a time in nearly every city she visited.

Sprung Suddenly Into Fame.

Mrs. Nation was born in Kentucky and her maiden name was Moore. She was a schoolmate of Senator Blackburn. Her mother was said to have died in an insane asylum. Mrs. Nation was married twice. Her second husband, Captain David Nation, was a civil war veteran. Her early married life was spent in Texas. She had not been heard outside her own circle until June 6, 1900, when she and her husband were living in Medicine Lodge, Kan. One day she drove in her buggy to Kiowa and with half a dozen bricks she demolished three saloons, and would have smashed all the others in town if the proprietors had not locked their doors. She became a national character at once, and extended her operations to Topeka, Wichita, and then to other cities.

Mrs. Nation was put out of the White House in 1903, when Mr. Roosevelt was there, and was fined $25 for disturbing the senate. She ran a temperance paper, The Hatchet, in Oklahoma, and in 1900 a warrant was issued for her for sending improper matter through the mails. Captain Nation got a divorce from her in 1901 on the ground of gross neglect.

LATE REPORTS

Show Widespread Devastation in the Mexican Earthquake.

Mexico City, June 10.—Only with the partial restoration of telegraphic communication throughout the republic has the real extent of the devastation brought by the earthquake been revealed. Every dispatch received here in the last twenty-four hours has added to the horror.

The most conservative estimate prepared by the government shows that fully 1,500 have been killed, and when the inaccessible sections are heard from it is feared that the death list will go above 5,000.

New Home For Fairbanks.

Indianapolis, June 10.—Plans have been submitted for the new home of former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks at the southwest corner of Meridian and Thirtieth streets. It will be a two-story structure of stone with basement and attic. One feature will be a fully equipped gymnasium in the basement. The plans are said to be the finest ever submitted to the building inspector.

For the Good of Mexico.

WOOL TARIFF IS TO BE REVIVED

That is the Plan of the Democratic Majority in the Lower House.

BRYAN ATTACKS "POWERS"

Predicted That Defeat of Reciprocity in Senate Will Help Taft's Standing.

(Special to Daily Republican.)

Washington, D. C., June 10.—So far as the House of Representative is concerned the wool tariff is to be revised, and Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee says that two-thirds of the Democratic Members of the House will stand by the party edict and his Committee in ratifying the program which has been agreed upon. There is no measure before Congress except that of reciprocity, that has brought a greater protest from all over the country than the effort to practically remove protection on wool. While there is little sympathy with the manufacturers, yet the growers and producers of wool are up in arms and are beseeching Congress not to destroy their industry. William Jennings Bryan characterizes the mild protection the Democratic Committee proposes as a violation of the pledges of the Democratic party, and he declares that, "there is no reason why a few sheep raisers should be shown favoritism at the expense of those who wear woolen clothing." He also asserts that, "it may be well remembered that voters of all parties are braver than politicians." However, Mr. Underwood who is the real ruler of Democratic destinies in the House of Representatives, does not propose to change his program.

An interesting phase of the political situation is being discussed in Washington, and there are plenty of politicians who recognize the possibility that if the Senate defeats reciprocity, it will be doing the best possible thing to help the personal standing of President Taft. The logic of this viewpoint is that if the Senate, which is none too strong in the eyes of the Nation, turns down the reciprocity agreement, that President Taft can go out before the country, hammering away at the issue before the people, and preach the doctrine of lower tariffs, thereby making business extremely bad for some of the Senators who are now doing their level best to defeat reciprocity, both by direction and in-direction. While there is determined opposition among a good many of the farmers of the country in regard to Canadian reciprocity, yet the consensus of opinion is that the great majority of the people are in favor of the treaty. The one shining illustration of splendid management upon the part of President Taft has been his handling of this measure, and it is believed that regardless of what the Senate may do that the President's political fortunes will be made through it.

It has been quietly rumored that Congressman James T. Lloyd, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, has been the subject of good deal of criticism on the part of Democratic Members of the Committee on Patronage, on account of his inclinations to take care of relatives. He has secured the appointment of his brother as Secretary of the Committee on Accounts, and during previous Congresses had two other members of his family on the Government payroll. Mr. Lloyd, like the balance of the Democratic managers, talks a great deal about economy, but in his own personal matters there is no evidence that he has put anything of this kind in practice. His management of the last political campaign was seriously criticized, and it is questionable whether he will be able to secure enough to retain his position as head of the Committee through another election.

the postal affairs of the country facing a deficit of $17,500,000, announces that the present year will show a revenue of $1,000,000 in excess of the Department expenses. The Postmaster General says that penny postage is the goal he is aiming at, and he expects to make this the great achievement of his Administration. The wiping out of the deficit is the forerunner, and it will not be surprising to see the new rate within the next twelve months.

The victories of the Federal Government in the cases of the Standard Oil and the tobacco trust, have been substantial ones for the Administration, in dealing in a reasonable and practical manner with these great combinations, which have been operating in restraint of trade. President Taft and Attorney General Wickersham are receiving congratulations from all over the country, as the greatest "trust busters" in history.

INSTRUCTIONS ON LOST ARTICLES

Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction Company Gives Method to be Followed in Such Cases.

ATTEMPT TO LOCATE OWNERS

The Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction company plans to publish bulletins on subjects of interest and importance to the employees of the company. The first one has been issued and has to do with the work of the conductors and motormen. It is said that future bulletins may be interesting to patrons of the road as it is the intention of the general manager to cover every phase of the company's business.

At the close of the instructions to employees, the following concerning lost articles is published:

Whenever a conductor, motorman, or other employee of the company finds a lost article and knows to whom it belongs, he should at once deliver it to the owner. If he can not deliver it to the owner at once, then he should without delay send it in to C. O. Warfel, chief clerk, at the Rushville office, plainly marked on tag attached showing by whom, date when and place where found, and any other matters that should be noted. These articles will thus be gathered at the Rushville office and when inquiry is made of any agent or other employee of the company regarding the lost article he should at once apply to the person in charge of the telephone desk at the Rushville office, either in person or by telephone, and ascertain whether it is there, and, if so, make arrangements for its delivery to the owner. If sent to the owner at some other station, it will be sent by express, charges collect.

Chocolate Cake

The best results are obtained by using sour milk and soda, if the correct amount of soda is used. Too much will cause the cake to fall when baking or crumble when cut.

If good butter and a high grade of chocolate are used and the cake is not scorched in baking, there are few cakes to equal the good, old-fashioned chocolate cake or "Devil's Food."

together lost on his successor; and the people may be spared the continual humiliation of having their money spent to educate young men in snobbery and treason to the democratic spirit.

The coming of the burning months of summer is dreaded by the majority of our people. Any physician will tell you, however, that pneumonia, bronchitis, and other of the greatest foes of the human physique, together with infinite minor affections of the throat and respiratory organs grow out of the strain of adjusting our delicate human frame to the vicissitudes of winter.

In tropical climates they have acquired better the art of living in hot weather. They rise early, receive the cool invigoration of the dawning day, and by the time the sun has reached its meridian they are ready for their restful siesta. Their houses, built to admit air freely, are more favorable to mid-day sleep than our tightly built dwellings whose windows give insufficient access to the air.

As the sun dips toward the western horizon some more work is done. Of course, our abnormal and unwholesome system of factory and business office labor makes such an ideal arrangement impracticable for most of us. But one hopes that mankind will not live forever in a manner defying his physical environment.

The state board of health has issued a suggestion to public school officials that no teacher in ill health should be employed. The teacher should teach and exemplify health as well as culture, and a teacher who constantly is "out of sorts" because of poor health can not render value received for the money paid her by the State, nor can she impress the rudiments of proper health precautions readily. The board holds that a teacher nervous or irritable will do harm to the dispositions of children. In Indiana the sick rate and death rate among teachers are higher than in general life. This is due almost certainly to unsanitary school houses. In spring at the end of the term the teacher as a rule is "run down." Perhaps there is a slight cough—consumption. The death rate of consumption among teachers is one in six. Apparently school trustees would do well in selecting teachers first to make a physical as well as mental and educational examinations. "Ill health," the board maintains, "usually is the result of wrong living and not to know how to live rightly is a terrible indictment of the teacher."

EDITORIALETTES.

Don't let the revival meeting deter you in your war on the fly.

Every good cause must be given its due space in the day's doings.

They say that a man with a thermos bottle and an electric fan would to a slight degree alleviate the stress of the hot weather.

We hear that the cherries are not to be so sweet this year. That's sad news for the cherry pie eaters.

One woman in Rushville, there is, who went to the revival the first night, found that she could not sit up straight on a seat without a back to it and retired to a five cent theater. And she's some church member, too.

Rushville saloon keepers may rest in peace now since Carrie has passed over the river.

Swat and the world swats with you; sulk and you sulk alone.

Try that over on the piano in G Flat around the corner.

The New Castle Courier opines that "the religion may be catching down at Rushville but that some of them are vaccinated."

'Tis believed that a little of that stuff injected into that man's town would do no harm if the divorce court and the police court is to be taken as a criterion.

Irrigation workers in Arizona, so we see by an exchange, have stated a paper called the Dam Truth. It may fill a long felt want there.

HEART RENDING SCENES; ENACTED IN COURT HOUSE

building. Only one day last week, a Rush county woman who some months ago sought relief from her husband's brutality by obtaining a decree of separation, held a little "meeting" with an affinity, who happens to be a Rushville young man. 'Tis said their meetings have been frequent and many there are who have become acquainted with their seemingly secret trysting place back in a darkened corner of the building.

But that's some of the happy side of the life that is made and undone in the halls of the Rush county court house. Too often it is the dark side that is portrayed to the close observer. Only one day this week a strange scene took place in which a Rush county man and woman, who only recently received a divorce, were the participants.

They started for the clerk's office, coming up to the west entrance of the building. The clerk saw them and expected that they had found that they had no differences and were coming back to be legally made man and wife once more. He hurried to the records to find if she had a right to take unto herself a man for two years. Yes, she had that right and the clerk waited expectantly for the couple. But they never came. They got as far as the door and there they stopped.

Evidently something arose between them when they almost on the eve of taking another whirl in a bungalow. They faltered on the doorstep, but to falter was to be lost. They stopped, glanced into one another's eyes and then turned their backs on the only place where they could find that which would join them together again. They retired to the steps leading to the first floor and there they discussed over and over again their many difficulties.

Salty tears flowed from the eyes of the grass widow, but the man, he was as sober as Judge Blair when he granted the decree to the woman. Few words did he utter. But she poured out her heart to him in endearing terms. He was as stolid as a sphinx and never did he offer to be lenient. After the supply of tears had all but been exhausted, they arose as one and repaired to a candy kitchen. There the sweet things helped to enliven the divorced husband, but they never returned for a marriage license. They may get up to the counter the next time they try.

Carthage relatives have received word that Miss Harriet Scott and J. Resh were married at Seattle, Wash., last December. The wedding was kept a secret until this time. This information was conveyed this week by a letter from the bride to her sister, Mrs. J. A. Lineback of Carthage. The couple met while Mrs. Scott was living with a friend at Los Angeles, Cal., the home of the bridegroom. Mr. Resh is in the real estate business and he and his bride are living in their new home at Anaheim, a suburb of Los Angeles. Mrs. Resh had led her relatives at Carthage to believe her marriage would occur this June, and they were quite surprised to hear it was an event of last year.

NOT SO MANY POOR IN THE TOWNSHIP

Statistical Report Shows Outdoor Relief in Rushville is Decreased by Almost One-Half.

NOT SMALLER IN THE COUNTY

It is a notable fact that Rushville township, which does not include much besides the city of Rushville, shows a big reduction in the amount of outdoor poor relief given last year, as compared to 1909, according to statistics compiled by Amos W. Butler, secretary of the Board of State Charities. Sixty-one Indiana counties show a reduction by the comparison. In twenty-three townships in the State no relief was given in either 1909 or 1910. Although Rush county is not in the list of the counties that have shown a decrease, statistics show that there is less poor in Rushville. In the year 1909, $2,042.92 was paid out for outdoor relief and in 1910, $1,442.90 was used, which is a decrease of nearly one-half. Outdoor relief is given by township trustees to indigents who are not inmates of State institutions.

Mr. Whitely has been considering a change, but the Yearly Meeting of the Friends advised that a change of pastors be not made too often. His ninth year will begin October 1 of this year.

CHAPTER XXIII.

An Unexpected Meeting.
Keith paused at the landing, looking down into the deserted office, almost tempted to return and force Hawley into a confession of his purpose. It was easy for him to conceive what would be the final result of this interview between the artistic gambler and Miss MacLaure. In spite of the vague suspicion of evil which the plainsman had implanted within the woman's mind, and the other possessed the advantage, and would certainly improve it. All conditions were decidedly in his favor. He merely needed to convince the girl that she was actually the party sought, and she would go forward, playing the game he desired, believing herself right, totally unconscious of any fraud. The very simplicity of it rendered the plot the more dangerous, the more difficult to expose. Hawley had surely been favored by fortune in discovering this singer who chanced to resemble Hope so remarkably, and who, at the same time, was in such ignorance as to her own parentage. She would be ready to grasp at a straw, and, once persuaded as to her identity and legal rights, could henceforth be trusted implicitly as an ally.

Realizing all this, and comprehending also how easily Hawley would win her confidence and overcome his warning by denouncing him as a fugitive from justice charged with murder, the temptation to return and fight it out then and there became almost overpowering. He had no fear of Hawley; indeed, physical fear had scarcely a place in his composition, but he was not as yet sufficiently fortified with facts for the seeking of such an encounter. He could merely guess at the truth, unable to produce any proof with which to meet the gambler's certain denial.

A man came in through the office, and began climbing the stairs. He was almost at the landing before Keith recognized him or the other glanced up.

"Ah—seen her, I suppose?"

"Yes," returned Keith, not thinking it worth while to mention the lady's denial of having sent for him. "I have just come from there."

"Hum—thought you'd be through by this time—fine looking girl, ain't she?—believe I'll run in and chat with her myself."

"I would advise you to select some other time, Doctor," said the younger, dryly, "as the lady has a visitor at present."

"A visitor?" his face rose, his shrewd eyes darkening. "Ah, indeed! Of the male sex?"

"I judge so—'Black Bart' Hawley."

"Good Lord!" so startled his voice broke. "Did he see you?"

"Rather; I backed him up against the wall with a gun while I made my adieu."

"But what brought him there? Are they acquainted?"

"Don't ask conundrums, Doctor. He may be your rival with the fair lady for all I know. If he is, my sympathies are all with you. Only I wouldn't try to see Miss Christie just now; I'd wait for a clearer field. Hawley is probably not in the best of humor."

Fairbairn stared into the face of the speaker, uncertain whether or not he was being laughed at.

"Reckon you're right," he acknowledged at last. "Tired, anyhow—been out all night—thought I'd like to see her again, though—fine looking woman I've met since I came West—"

Stop Experimenting! Take a 'Cascaret'

Nearly all our ills Come Through Inactive Liver and Bowels. Millions of Folks Keep Feeling Good With Cascarets.

One must keep the bowels clean. Do it just the same as you keep your skin clean. Not by severe applications, applied at rare intervals. But by gentle and regular efforts. It pays immensely.

Many people dread physic. They think castor oil or salts and cathartics. They shrink from the after-effects—griping and weakness. So they postpone the dose until they are costive or bilious. Then they do the cleaning in a heroic way. That is all wrong.

Cascarets are a gentle laxative. They are just as effective as anything else, and more natural. And they are pleasant—a candy. They are made to carry with you. Take one just as soon as you need it. You'll know. The result is your bowels are always active. You always feel at your best. Try a 10 cent box of Cascarets. You'll never again go without them.

remarkable eyes—well, I'll go along to bed—see you again to-morrow, Jack."

Keith watched the sturdy figure stamp heavily down the hall-way, loose boards creaking under his positive tread, and smiled to himself at the thought that he might have, indeed, become truly interested in the music hall singer. Somehow, the doctor did not harmonize with the conception of love, or fit graciously into the picture. Still, stranger matings had occurred, and Cupid does not ask permission before he plays pranks with hearts. Keith turned again toward the stairs, only to observe a woman slowly cross the office and commence the ascent. She was in the shadow, her face even more deeply shaded by her hat, yet he stared at her in amazement—surely, it was Miss MacLaure! Yet how could it be? He had left that person scarcely five minutes before in "26," and this stairway was the only exit. His hand grasped the rail, his heart throbbing strangely, as a suspicion of the truth crossed his brain. Could this be Hope? Could it be that she was here also? As her foot touched the landing, she saw him, her eyes lighting up suddenly in recognition, a wave of color flooding her cheeks.

"Why, Captain Keith," she exclaimed, extending her gloved hand frankly, "you have been to my room, and were going away. I am so glad I came in time."

"I hardly thought to meet you," he replied, retaining her fingers in his grasp. "When did you reach Sheridan?"

"Only last night. I had no idea you were here until Doctor Fairbairn chanced to mention your name. Then I at once begged him to tell you how exceedingly anxious I was to see you. You see, I was sure you would come if you only knew. I really thought you would be here this morning, and remained in my room waiting, but there were some things I actually had to have. I wasn't out ten minutes, so you mustn't think I sent you a message and then forgot."

The nature of the mistake was becoming apparent, and Keith's gray eyes smiled as they looked into the depths of the brown.

"Your message had rather an amusing result," he said, "as the doctor informed me that Miss Christie MacLaure was the one who desired my presence."

"Miss MacLaure!" her voice exhibiting startled surprise. "Why—why—oh, I did forget; I never told him differently. Why, it was most ridiculous."

Stops itching scalp, or money back. "I am pleased to say that Parisian Sage as a hair grower and beautifier and as a dandruff cure and scalp cleaner is fine."—Mrs. N. T. Clift, 210 N. Penn. Ave., Greenfield, Ind., 1910.

lous." She laughed, white teeth gleaming between the parted red lips, yet not altogether happily. "Let me explain, Captain Keith, for really I have not been masquerading. Doctor Fairbairn and I arrived upon the same train last evening. He is such a funny man, but was very nice, and offered to escort me to the hotel. I remember now that although he introduced himself, I never once thought to mention to him my name. The town was very rough last night—the company had paid off the graders I was told—and there was no carriage, so we were compelled to walk. I—I never saw such a mob of drunken men. One came reeling against me, and brushed aside my veil so as to see my face. The doctor struck him, and then the marshal came up—you know him, Bill Hickock—and the impudent fellow actually declared he knew me, that I was Christie MacLaure. I tried to explain, but they hurried me on through the crowd to the hotel, and I became confused, and forgot. Do you suppose they registered me by that name?"

"Quite likely; at least Fairbairn still believes it was the Christie whom he so gallantly escorted last night."

"How provoking," her foot tapping the floor, a little wrinkle between her eyes. "It seems as though I couldn't escape that woman—does she—does she really look like me?"

"At a little distance, yes," he admitted, "her form and face resemble yours very closely, but her hair is darker, her eyes have a different expression, and she must be five or six years older."

"Do—do you know her well?"

"No, indeed; I have seen her several times on the stage, but never met her until a few moments ago."

"A few moments ago! Do you mean she is here in this hotel?"

"Yes, Miss Hope, and that was what made the mistake in names so laughable. Fairbairn gave me your message, but as coming from Christie, I was, of course, greatly surprised, yet responded. The lady very promptly denied having sent for me, but as I was anxious to interview her myself, we managed to drift into conversation, and I must have passed a half hour there. I might have been there still, but for an interruption."

"Oh, indeed!" with rising inflection. He glanced quickly about, reminded of the situation.

"Yes, Hawley came in, and I would prefer not to meet him here, or have him discover you were in Sheridan. Could we not go to your room? I have much to tell you."

Her questioning eyes left his face, and stared down over the rail. A heavily built man, with red moustache, leaned against the clerk's desk, his face toward them.

"Do you know that man?" she asked quickly. "He followed me all the time I was shopping. I—I believe he is the same one who jostled me in the crowd last night."

Keith leaned past her to get a better view, but the fellow turned, and slouched away.

"I only had a glimpse, but have no recollection of ever seeing him before. You heard no name?"

"'Wild Bill' called him either Scott, or Scotty—if this is the same man."

Keith's jaw set, the fighting light burning in his eyes. That was the name of the fellow rooming with Willoughby, the one who seemed to be Hawley's special assistant. Was he here as a spy? His hands clinched on the rail. He was anxious to go down and wring the truth out of him, but instead, he compelled his eyes to smile, turning back to the girl.

"A mere accident probably; but about my request? May I talk with you a few moments alone?"

She bowed, apparently still dissatisfied regarding his lengthy conversation with Christie, yet permitted him to follow down the hall. She held open the door of "15," and he entered silently, not wholly understanding the change in her manner. She stood before the dresser, drawing off her gloves and removing her hat.

"Will you be seated, Captain; the arm-chair by the window is the more comfortable." She turned toward him, almost shyly, yet with womanly curiosity which would not be stifled. "Was your call upon Miss MacLaure very interesting? Did you admire her very much?"

Keith's eyes lifted to her face, his ears quick to detect the undertone in her voice.

"Interesting? yes, for I was seeking after information, and met with some success. As to the other question, I am not sure whether I admire the lady or not. She is bright, pretty, and companionable, and in spite of her profession, at heart, I believe, a good woman. But really, Miss Hope, I was too deeply immersed in my purpose to give her personality much consideration. Among other things we spoke of you."

"Of me? Why?"

"I told her something of our adventures together; of how both Hawley and I had been confused. She was anxious to learn who you were, but unfortunately, I have never, even yet, heard your name."

"You have not?"

"No, I left you at Fort Larned believing you Christie MacLaure—supposing it your stage name, of course—and was confirmed in this belief by finding in the holster of the saddle you had been riding an envelope bearing that address."

"I remember; it contained the note the man brought to me from Hawley; he had written it that way." She crossed the room, sinking down into a chair facing him. "And you have actually confused me with Christie MacLaure all this while? Have never known who I was?"

He shook his head.

"I told you to call me Hope; that is my name—I am Hope Waite."

"Wait!" he leaned forward, startled by the possibility—"not—not—"

"Yes," she burst in, holding out her hands, clasping the locket, "and this was my father's; where did you get it?"

He took the trinket from her, turning it over in his fingers. Little by little the threads of mystery were being unraveled, yet, even now, he could not see very far. He looked up from the locket into her questioning face.

"Did I not tell you? No; then it was an oversight. This was about the throat of one of the men I buried at Cimmaron Crossing, but—but, Hope, it was not your father's."

"I know," her voice choking slightly. "Mrs. Murphy found that out; that is why I am here. I heard my father came to Sheridan, and I wanted you to help me find him."

He was thinking and did not answer at once, and she went on in some alarm.

"Do you know anything about him, Captain Keith? Where is he? Why is he here? Don't be afraid to tell me."

He pressed the locket back into her hand, retaining the latter, unresisted, within his own.

"I have not seen your father, Hope, but he was certainly here a few days ago, for Fairbairn met him. They were together in the army. I am going to tell you all I know—it seems to be a tangled web, but the ends must be somewhere, although, I confess, I am all at sea."

He told it slowly and simply, bringing forth his earlier suspicion, and how he had stumbled upon facts apparently confirming them. He related her father's robbery, his loss of valuable papers, and the conversation between Hawley and Scott which led to the suspicion that these same papers had fallen into the hands of the former, and were the basis of his plot. Hope listened, breathless with interest, her widely opened eyes filled with wonder. As he concluded speaking she burst forth:

"But I don't understand in the least, Captain Keith. Why did this man Hawley send me to the Salt Fork?"

"He thought he was dealing with Christie MacLaure. He had some reason for getting her away; getting her where he could exercise influence over her."

"Yes—yes; but who is she?"

"That is what makes the matter so hard to unravel. She doesn't even know herself. Hawley is going to take advantage of her ignorance in this respect, and convince her that she is the person he wishes her to represent—but who is the person? If we knew that we might block the game."

Both sat silent, striving to figure out some reasonable explanation.

"Do you know of any special papers your father carried?" he asked.

"No; none outside his business agreements."

"Has any one ever disappeared connected with your family? Did you have an older sister?"

"Fred and I were the only children. Why should you ask that question?"

"Because something of that nature would seem to be the only rational explanation. Your brother must have told Hawley something—some family secret—which he felt could be utilized to his own advantage. Then he saw your picture, and was immediately reminded of the remarkable resemblance between you and Christie MacLaure. Evidently this discovery fitted into his plan, and made it possible for him to proceed. He has been trying ever since to get an interview with the woman, to sound her, and find out what he can do with her. He has written letters, sufficiently explicit to make it clear his scheme is based upon a will drawn, as he claims, by Christie's grandfather. No doubt by this time he has fully convinced the girl that she is the rightful heiress to property—as he stated to Scott—valued at over a million dollars. That's a stake worth fighting for, and these two will make a hard combination. He's got the papers, or claims to have, and they must be the ones stolen from your father. I have been trusting you might know something in your family history which would make it all plain."

"But I do not," decisively. "You must believe me; not so much as a hint of any secret has ever reached me. There are only the four of us, Father, Mother, Fred, and I. I am sure there can be no secret; nothing which I would not know. Perhaps, if I could see Miss MacLaure—"

"I am convinced that would be useless," he interrupted, rising, and pacing across the floor. "If Hawley has convinced her of the justice of the claim, he will also have pledged her to secrecy. He is working out of sight like a mole, for he knows the fraud, and will never come to the surface until everything is in readiness. I know a better way; I'll find Fred, and bring him here. He would tell you whatever it was he told Hawley, and that will give us the clue."

He picked up his hat from the table, but she rose to her feet, holding forth her hands.

"I cannot thank you enough, Captain Keith," she exclaimed frankly. "You are doing so much, and with no personal interest—"

"Oh, but I have."

The long lashes dropped over the brown eyes.

"What do you mean?"

"That I have a personal interest—in you, Hope."

She stood silent, her bosom rising and falling to rapid breathing.

"You don't mind my calling you Hope? I haven't got used to Miss Waite yet."

Her eyes met his swiftly.

"Of course, not. Such ceremony would be foolish after all you have done for me. Do—do you call her Christie?"

He laughed, clasping her hands closer.

"I assure you no—she is strictly Miss MacLaure, and," solemnly, "shall be to the end of the chapter."

"Oh, well, I didn't care, only that was what you called her when you were telling me what she said. Are you going?"

"Yes, to find Fred; the sooner we can get this straightened out, the better."

Train On the E. J. & E. Ditched By Wreckers.
THREE ARE FATALLY INJURED

Semaphore Light at a Derail Was Tampered With and Engine Plunged Down Embankment and the Engineer and a Brakeman Were Caught Beneath Wreckage of Cab—Engineer Thought Track Was Clear.
Hammond, Ind., June 10.—In the wreck of a train on the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern railroad, which is attributed to tampering with a semaphore light at a derail, three men were fatally injured.
The injured are Henry Larsen, Joliet, engineer, scalded and crushed about the body and taken to Mercy hospital, Gary; C. R. McKnight, Joliet, brakeman, jaw broken, scalded about the body, taken to Mercy hospital, Gary; John McGraw, Joliet, fireman, scalded and burned about the head.
The southbound freight train, in charge of C. R. Wilbur, conductor, ran into an open derail. Investigation showed that the red light in the semaphore had been broken out, indicating to the engineer that the track was clear. The engine plunged down an embankment and the three injured men were caught under the wreckage of the cab.

Eight Negroes Killed By Two Louisianians.

New Orleans, June 10.—W. I. Bout, New Orleans, June 10.—When at Labranch, La., they shot and killed eight negroes in ten minutes. W. I. Bout-lee and George Story are believed to have broken all records for rapid and deadly revolver shooting. There was one wounded, which puts Story's score a bit ahead of Bout-lee's.
The negroes were members of a section gang and Bout-lee is foreman. The blacks conceived a hatred for the "boss" and plotted to kill him. They engaged in a fight among themselves and when Bout-lee rushed over to stop the row, they turned upon him and one struck him over the head with a shovel. Bout-lee fell but sat up, and before he finished rising to his feet, had shot four times and killed four negroes.
George Story, a conductor, heard the first loud talking among the negroes, looked at his watch and saw he had just ten minutes before train time. He ran down the track and arrived just as Bout-lee finished shooting. Story then killed four negroes and wounded one, with six shots, then returned and took his train out on time.

THE PRESIDENT FULLY AROUSED
Starts to Work to Defeat Root Amendment.
RECIPROCITY BILL IN DANGER

Declaration of Chairman Underwood That House Will Not Accept the Measure if Sent Back From the Senate With the Root Amendment Tacked Onto it, Serves to Arm the President.

Washington, June 10.—President Taft has started to work for the defeat of the Root amendment to the reciprocity bill in the senate. The president seems to have taken in good faith the declaration of Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee that the house would not accept the bill again if the Root amendment is adopted, and is going to strain every nerve to keep the reciprocity bill from undergoing the test of Underwood's threatened opposition.
The Democratic chairman told the president plainly that the house had done all it would for reciprocity. He said that if the bill went into conference with the Root amendment the house would refuse to accept the bill unless the senate receded from its demand for the amendment. The enemies of the bill in the senate are too strong or, rather, too many of its supporters are lukewarm, to have the bill stand the strain of a severe fight over a conference report at the last moment, and the president is alarmed for its safety.

RIOTING AT CLEVELAND

Garment Makers' Strike Leads to Scenes of Violence.

Cleveland, June 10.—One hundred policemen, summoned to the scene of a riot between striking garment workers and their sympathizers and non-union workmen, last evening charged on the rioters. One man was shot and at least a half dozen seriously injured. Scores suffered battered heads and body bruises.

About 600 men and women gathered in front of a factory on West Twenty-fifth street as the non-union workmen were about to leave the building. A brick hurled into the crowd caused the riot. When the police arrived the strikers and non-union men were hurling bricks, clubs and stones.
Patrolman John Breker was struck on the head. He shot Roselli Doloungo, a striker, in the thigh. Another man received a gash in the throat.
Later a crowd of strikers gathered at a plant on West Forty-seventh street to force out the non-union workers. Another riot call brought a squad of police and the crowd was dispersed.

Victim of Murderous Burglar.

Greensboro, N. C., June 10.—Mrs. Ida Hill, widow of the late Dr. J. S. Hill of Lexington, N. C., was found gagged, tied and dead in her room at the residence of her mother, Mrs. J. S. Ragsdale of Jamestown. The bureau drawers had been left open and sacked, the booty being found tied in napkins on the dining table, and an open window in the room showed that the burglars, of whom no trace has been discovered, had become alarmed and suddenly left.

Another Aviator Killed.

Rome, June 10.—In sight of thousands who were watching him fly in the Tiber river circuit races, Aviator Raemondo Marra's machine struck a telegraph pole and the engine immediately exploded, setting fire to the planes. The machine fell to the ground and Marra was buried under the wreckage. He lived only a few minutes after being extricated.

The robbers escaped with $500.

The Perils of the Air.

Berlin, June 10.—Schendel, one of Germany's most daring airmen, and his engineer, Voss, were killed near here. They were in a monoplane 5,000 feet in the air when the motor stopped and the machine fell.

SAYS CHURCHES ARE TOO COLD

stick to the gospel and stay away from evil things," continued the evangelist. He declared that it was a moral and spiritual impossibility for man to see the Spirit of God unless he was born of that Spirit.

"People should be more concerned about the now than in the sweet by-and-by," said the speaker. "When we become a child of God we want Him to teach us. This is the case of all children. The first thing a child is taught is to recognize his father and mother. So it is with the teaching of God. I do not go much on feelings but would rather base my belief on solid facts," said Evangelist Orr.

"The education of the child is the next work of the Holy Ghost in man. Men of the world come to the Bible as they would any other book and they try to work it the same as any other and because of this they brand it a bundle of lies," said Mr. Orr. Continuing he said, "The Bible is about the hardest book in the world to get interested in. We take the Bible and start to read, and in a few minutes we are sound asleep. Now take a novel or a political speech, and read it to the end without even getting tired. Why do you do this? It is because you should not go to the book as you would to any other. We should go to the Bible in a divine way."

In connection with this phase of his sermon the speaker drew a very vivid word picture of the president of a bank telling him there was $100,000 in the safe which he could have if he would open it. After trying as he might, no headway could be made and in the course of time called all the ministers of the city to his assistance. They had no success and gave the job over to the president who opened it in a most simple manner. The reason he did so was because he knew the combination. "So it is with the Bible. In order to read and understand it, we must know the combination," said he.

"God as a comforter plays an important part in the work of the Holy Ghost in a man, was another of the teachings. No man can have the comforts of the Holy Ghost unless he is in fear of the Lord," said Mr. Orr. "Sin breaks the heart and God is the one comforter," was the fact clearly shown. "The man walking in fear of the Lord is the only man in all God's wide world who is absolutely independent," declared the Rev. Mr. Orr. Continuing he said, "I would rather have God brag about me as he did Job than have all of Morgan's gold. He was childless, penniless, homeless and friendless, but in all this he maintained his intrepidity." The evangelist gave as Job's reason for this the fact that he was comforted in God and was therefore independent.

To show that Bible characters do exist in every day life he told of a visit to a sick woman who had been ill for seven years. Yet she did not want to die for she was comforted in God and was suffering for His glory that we might gain it. The description of the humble cabin and her destitute circumstances were very touching but the point was well made.

In speaking of liberty and freedom as one of the vital things in religion, the Rev. Mr. Orr severely criticized the churches for maintaining stiff formal services. "Some churches are just like cold storage plants and to a visitor seem very cold," declared Mr. Orr. The people are too cool and regard strangers as some kind of animal. This kind of a reception keeps people from going to church, he said. He asked the audience if the ministers of this city were running ice cream soda parlors and many cries of "no" were heard. "Before this meeting closes we will have liberty and freedom," he said. Stiffness of the members of any church toward strangers is a detriment and a drawback to the church and tends to keep people away.

"Dollars will buy harness and other things, but can not purchase peace in heaven," said he in speaking of the power of God. The power of the spirit of God in man is one of the great assets. Mr. Orr stated that the twelve apostles were not educated men, but they did have power. Martin Luther was a poor peasant lad, but he had the power to post his 95 theses, the result of which we feel yet today. A man can not have a little more personality today and a little more the next and so on—it is an impossibility, according to the Rev. Mr. Orr.

In closing he said, "The spirit of God may be in your heart, but you shut him out. You choose, love and think right, but you are lazy and keep him from your spirit. When you let the spirit have more of you, you will get right with God."

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

A wee and inoffensive animal with big brown, appealing eyes and bushy tail that curled up over its russet back nearly caused a panic on an I. & C. traction car between here and Indianapolis Thursday night. It was all due to the fact that the "juice" was off for a time and the car was stopped. During that time a flying squirrel climbed aboard and caused no end of amusement for the passengers. It was perfectly at home.

Of course, to make the story good, there was a number of women on the car. They really were. And it's natural for a woman to think that anything that crawls is a mouse. But the worst thing about this "mouse" was that it didn't crawl on the floor, but on the hat racks. And the women did not have the opportunity to climb up on the seats. Instead they hovered on the floor.

There being no zoologist present, it was hard to identify the animal for a time. Finally a traveling man who has been accustomed to shouldering a gun and taking to the woods, placed the animal in the category by naming it a flying squirrel. Then the women were not so frightened. When the lights were off there was a constant fear that the meek animal would "fly" off on their heads but the expected did not happen.
